Washington, Nov. 13.—The Mitchell defence was brought to a standstill today when Col. Moreland, judge-advocate, objected to testimony of defence witnesses based upon carbon copies of official records. When the court sustained the objection, Representative Reid, counsel for Mitchell, announced: "Until these records are produced by the War Department, the defence will have no further testimony to offer." He declared that the War Department had not produced the authentic records Col. Mitchell had asked for.

NICHOLS TO CARRY ON TELEPHONE RATE FIGHT

Mayor-elect Malcolm E. Nichols of Boston will go ahead with the fight being waged by the City of Boston before the Interstate Commerce Commission against telephone rates in Massachusetts, he announced in Washington today.

The commission has pending hearing a complaint from the city against interstate toll rates in Massachusetts, and a petition for an investigation of the New England Telephone Company and its allied interests, including the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the parent corporation.

These are charged with being an illegal combination by the city. The commission will make the investigation which will show according to Corporation Counsel Sullivan of Boston that the rates for service in the State are unreasonable. The commission has no control over these, however.

Mayor-Elect Nichols is looking for good ideas which might be adopted by Boston. He has been in Philadelphia and will go to New York tomorrow.

HALT IN BUYING HITS PRICE OF POTATOES

The potato-buying public is buying no more. Enraged at the high prices of potatoes, housekeepers held tight to their purses today and the sale of the "spuds" was marked at a standstill.

And the first drop in price to the consumer in several weeks came with the halt in the purchase when chain stores quoted 60 cents a peck, six cents lower than yesterday.

Elsewhere, however, potatoes still held their peak prices of from 75 to 90 cents a peck, with dealers who do not make deliveries reporting sales as having dropped to practically nothing.

The householders have moved against what they charge is gambling and wild speculating in the staple articles of the table.

Forced to pay what they declare are exorbitant prices the house-

WOMAN THOUGHT POOR HAD $25,000 IN BANKS

Although her friends thought she lived and died in meagre circumstances, Miss Annie M. James, of No. 99 Summer street, Somerville, it was learned today, left $25,000 in various savings banks.

Several bankbooks and a will dated in May, 1900, were found by Lieutenant Dansey and Patrolman Fulton, who searched her room, accompanied by Rev. Robert M. Pierce, pastor of the church that Miss James attended.

In her will Miss James made a number of private bequests and gave the residue to the Somerville Hospital, where she died last Saturday at the age of seventy years.

Although she never asked for aid, it was generally believed she was without funds but had a small income. She has lived alone since her father's death thirty years ago.

BOOKKEEPER ARRESTED IN $1,500,000 FRAUD

Charged with conspiracy to defraud in juggling book figures and deceiving stockholders, James A. Lidell, 45, bookkeeper for the Hamilton Mfg. Co., of Boston and Lowell was arrested by police inspectors today.

Lidell's arrest by Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta, was on a secret indictment warrant, charging forty-four counts, and warrants are out for five other men connected with the company, charging similar offenses.

The bookkeeper, who lives at No. 290 East Milton street, Readville, is charged specifically with making false entries in the books over a period from Jan. 1, 1921, to June 31,

12,000 TO JOIN STATE UNION

As a result of the State administration's refusal to grant salary increases for "high grade" employes, 12,000 State officials and employes are organizing a "union" for self-protection to be known as the Commonwealth Service Association.

The Eastern Massachusetts Unit, one of the five district units of the association, organized at a meeting at Young's Hotel, with George B. Willard, first Deputy State Treasurer, as president, and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin as vice-president.

The purpose of the association is to strengthen the efficiency of departmental operations, support all measures that will benefit and improve the public service and promote the closer association of employes for their mutual benefit.

The "union" intends to work in harmony with the administrative officers of the State government, according to officials of the association. The State engineers and allied professions already organized with more than 600 members, are expected to co-operate with the new organization.

'SUITOR HARVARD MAN, BUT REFINED'—MRS. KIP

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 13 (A.P.)—The first communication from Leonard Kip Rhinelander to Alice Beatrice Jones, daughter of a New Rochelle negro taxi driver, to be read in his annulment suit won a telegram asking her to visit him in San Francisco in 1922. This was two years before their marriage.

The message read: "Will be in San Francisco for at least two weeks, as my pal is in a hospital undergoing an operation. If you can possibly arrange to come, take train that arrives in four days. Wire me at Cliff Hotel."

Alice Rhinelander was unable to come and wrote him to that effect the following day. In her letter read into the records, she said she was celebrating his birthday and had bought a birthday cake, as he had requested. "I had your place all set as if you were coming," she said.

Under date of May 14, 1923, she

HARVARD WILL SCRAP COACHES AND BUILD UP NEW GRID TEAM

By NICK FLATLEY

Harvard will have a new football system next Fall. Bob Fisher will not sign up as head coach, and most of his assistants will pass along with him.

The constant Harvard disaster in this year's campaign has settled the fate of Fisher, although he announced in advance that he did not intend to be gridiron boss after this season.

Those who know football at Cambridge know that the coaches can't be blamed, that Harvard lacks the real football material—the tough, rough youngsters from High and Prep schools who make real stars.

The Harvard graduate football committee knew it when Fisher was persuaded to return this year. He wasn't anxious. He knew his team would be beaten by most of its opponents. He didn't figure casualties to come as thick and fast as they have, but he wasn't astonished.

It was hoped that the addition of

STORM WHIPS 6 N. E. STATES

Barns and cottages were overturned, trees were blown across highways and telephone and telegraph service was interrupted in one of the worst wind storms in years in Rutland County, Vermont, today.

The force of the tempest was felt in every New England State. Shipping suffered, telephone, electric light and trolley service was crippled and the property damage will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A large cottage on Lake Dunmore, Vt., was overturned and blown several yards from its foundation. An automobile stage driver reported the top of his car had been blown away.

Because of the gale at sea the steamer Belfast, bound from Rangeley to Boston, put into Portland Harbor to await clearing. The Edward Pierce, bound for Lambert's Point, Va., anchored in Vineyard Sound, and the Absecon, en route from Norfolk to New Bedford, dropped anchor off Nigger Ledge, in Buzzards Bay.

The wind swept the water high on the Boston side of the harbor and most of the towboats took refuge on the East Boston side.

At Beverly, Salem and other small harbors in Massachusetts Bay tug-

SMITH COLLEGE GIRL FOUND KILLED BY GAS

Northampton, Nov. 13 (A.P.)—Miss M. Robeson of Elizabethtown, N. C., a senior at Smith College, was found dead today in the kitchen of the dormitory at Park House.

Death was due to accidental asphyxiation, according to Medical Examiner Edwin A. Brown, who was called by the matron, Miss Jean Wyle.

Miss Robeson was the daughter of Dr. John A. Robeson, a physician. She had planned to attend the Yale-Princeton football game tomorrow and went into the kitchenette last night to press some clothes in preparation for her trip to New Haven. It was believed she turned on the gas in a small two burner stove and either tripped and fell or fainted before she put a match to the jet. It was believed she was unconscious throughout the night and died early this morning.

Miss Robeson was popular among the students at Smith College and was in good health.

ARREST CLERK IN $1,500,000 FRAUD PLOT

Warrants Out for Five Others Connected With 100-Year-Old Textile Company

08. The conspiracy charge is dated ion Nov. 1, 1920, to Nov. 1, 1925. (Offices of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. led are at No. 99 Chauncy street, and at this location and at the mill in Lowell, Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta, under direction of Chief Inspector John R. McGarr have been quietly investigating for many months.

For more than 100 years the company, solid and stable, had functioned in the textile industry—until five years ago, according to the police.

From that date until last June 27, it is alleged, the company books and overseers' reports have been altered and the figures juggled to deceive stockholders, in an aggregate amount totalling at least $1,500,000.

The long months of investigation, following complaints to the police, up to secret indictments, returned by the Grand Jury.

The indictments carry two main charges: Violation of Chapter 266, Section 93, of the Statutes, relative to publishing false or exaggerated statements of assets and liabilities of a corporation, and violation of Section 67, relative to making false entries on books of a corporation for the purpose of deceiving stockholders.

BIG LOAN FLOATED.

It is alleged that in the passage of overseers' reports from the Lowell mill to the Boston office, the figures were raised substantially, making it appear that the company had more goods on hand and was doing more business than the reality.

One raise of figures, the police allege was as high a $381,345.60, on a $377,275.30 report of the overseers.

As a result of the inflated book figures, it is alleged, the company officers were enabled to float a loan of half a million dollars.

AUTO VICTIM DESERTED; STUDENT HELD IN QUINCY

Pleading not guilty to a charge of going away without reporting an accident, Edwin Connors, eighteen, a student of No. 14 Cummings avenue, Wollaston, was held in $200 bail in Quincy court today and the case adjourned for hearing on November 20. Connors was arrested after Harry Lawton, fifty-three, of No. 231 Everett street, was found lying unconscious in Beale street. Lawton was taken to the City Hospital where he is on the danger list.

HALT IN BUYING OF POTATOES STOPS BOOST

wives, refusing to carry what potatoes they do buy, are demanding that they be delivered to their doors.

And, with the householders' strike today, came warning by a veteran wholesale dealer of a new advance in price, not so far in the offing.

"In 1919, a short crop year," he said, "potatoes were selling for $10 a bag, and I think before the Winter is over they will reach the same high price again."

DECLARES MARKET SHORT.

"The truth of the situation is that there is a potato shortage, and when the wholesaler goes to the farmer in a couple of months for more potatoes, the farmer is going to get the price he demands."

This dealer admitted that there is speculation in potatoes, and that speculators are doing their best to keep up prices, but he insisted that the principal reason for the high prices is the short crop.

"Just as soon as the potatoes that are in Boston have been consumed, you will see high prices," he warned.

Gamblers and speculators are blamed primarily for the boosted prices.

According to Maine potato growers, they raise about 10 per cent. of the entire potato crop of the United States, but there is an acute shortage this year.

With "Dollar potatoes" still ruling, Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the Necessities of Life, has launched an investigation that promises to be sweeping in its scope. He and his committee will try to ascertain just who and what is to blame for the excessive price of the potato.

CHARGE PROFITEERING.

According to potato raisers a fair average price paid them for their crop this year is about 50 cents a peck.

It costs about five cents to deliver a peck of potatoes in Boston.

The farmers state it is up to the buyer, the wholesaler and retailer to explain just why potatoes that cost on an average of 55 cents a peck delivered in Boston, should be sold at the excessive price of $1 a peck. In many instances farmers have been paid more than fifty cents a peck for the potatoes.

COAST PATROL BOAT HITS OFF MENEMSHA LIGHT

New London, Ct., Nov. 13 (A.P.).—Word of the plight of the CG135, ashore off Menemsha Light, came to the home station this morning, and patrol boat 234 was sent to its assistance. The section base at Nantucket was ordered to send aid.

boats waited several hours for the wind to fall before venturing out.

The tug Neptune of the Boston Towboat Company ran into the storm when nearing New York with a tow of three lighters. One of the lighters was swept loose and crashed ashore at Fort Slocum, while the Neptune made Whitestone, N. Y., with the others.

Sixteen large panes of glass were blown from windows in the trainshed of the South Station.

At Yarmouth, Me., the gale and high tide carried out the 250 foot pier of the Royal River Packing Company. Rockland, Me., reported that the schooner Northern Light had dragged her anchors and gone into the rocks at the Rockland breakwater. The crew was believed to be aboard, but the vessel's position was such that the men might get ashore at low tide.

In Bangor 400 telephones were put out of commission. Seventeen telephone and high tension poles toppled on one three-mile line.

Roofs were torn from buildings in Concord, N. H., and an airplane owned by Lieutenat Robert S. Fogg was damaged as it stood on the ground.

A chimney was blown through the roof of Harry Cheney, former speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in Concord.

At Popham Beach, Me., a freight shed was lifted off the wharf and toppled into the Kennebec River.

Trolley service in Bath, Me., and between Bath and Lewiston, was suspended for more than two hours because of wire troubles.

Several trees in Bath were blown down, taking trolley poles with them and crossing the electric and trolley wires, so that power had to be shut off.

A seventy-foot flagpole at the National Guard camp at Concord, N. H., was snapped off and the telephone company reported many lines out of order in New Hampshire and Maine.

The rain brought some relief to farmers, however, filling wells that were reported running low.

Pounding seas completed the destruction of the lighter C. Z. Crandall and its barge, Genevieve, which stranded Sunday night off Silver Beach, near Milford, Ct., and the tide brought in timbers which partially wrecked eight cottages.

Four hundred tons of soft coal was strewn along the beach.

Between Boston and New York most of the telegraph lines were hampered and some Connecticut communities were without service.

"No school" signals were sounded in most of the suburban cities and towns around Boston, although in Boston sessions were held as usual. Trees were down in Lowell and wire communication in the Merrimack Valley was disrupted for several hours.

In Connecticut the storm was reported as one of the worst in years, with even motor traffic virtually at a standstill because of rain and fog.

In Boston the wind reached a velocity of thirty-eight miles an hour and the rainfall here was the heaviest in New England, 1.22 inches. Heaviest winds were reported along the coast, especially at Block Island where mile-an-hour gale was blowing.

Flooded streets and clogged drains called out the emergency squads in several suburban cities. In Boston Public Works Department employes were busy in several parts of the city.

Clear, cool weather for the football week-end was predicted by the Boston weather forecaster, who promised clearing late today, with rising temperatures. No further storms have been located by weather observers nearer than the Rocky Mountain region.

Frank Gould Gets Millions 'Lost For Love'

New York, Nov. 13 (I.N.S.).—Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy today upheld the recent decision of Referee James O'Gorman that the third marriage of George Gould was not a violation of the marriage clause in the will of the late Jay Gould forbidding any of his children to marry without the consent of the other trustees of his $90,000,000 estate.

The penalty inflicted upon Frank Gould for marrying without the permission of the other children was the impounding of half of his income from the estate—$250,000 a year—and new amounts to several million dollars, which, under Referee O'Gorman's decision, must be returned to him.

Motors, which have been in the forefront of recent advances, began to play a less prominent part when it became evident that heavy profit-taking was taking place in General Motors, which sold down over 2 points from last night's closing quotation.

Rails and oils, several of which broke through to new high levels for the year, were in strong demand with buying influenced by the fact that those issues had not participated extensively in the recent advance.

While enormous block of stocks changed hands in the early trading, resulting in several sharp advances, the recovery became more orderly as trading progressed.

Three were only a few weak spots, among the most conspicuous being Hudson Motors, Union Bag & Paper and Radio Corporation.

Trading was in large volume, total sales in the first three hours running above one and three quarter million shares.

100 WOULD ADOPT HARDY'S 3 KIDDIES

WOMEN IN HYSTERIA AT HOME

Big-Hearted Folk Travel Hundreds of Miles; One Offers $1,000 Cash

Ashburnham, Nov. 13.—In a tragedy-stricken home here today were heard cries and sobs of hysterical women—and three pairs of wide, wondering eyes stared in childish puzzlement at the strange spectacle of a throng invading their privacy.

The big eyes were those of Doris, Roland and Liswelyn Hardy, two, four and nine years respectively, children of Mrs. Virginia Hardy, "Ashburnham's broken butterfly," and of Liston Hardy, heartbroken father, who is too poor to care for his motherless trio.

Gladly, said the stricken father, he would have them adopted into good homes to give them a chance in life—and today the invasion of compassionate women and big-hearted men overwhelmed the town of Ashburnham.

Ten strangers came, then thirty, fifty seventy-five and 100—modishly-clad women with arms outstretched to little Doris, who, not understanding, shrank back, affrightened and trembling.

OFFERS $1,000 FOR GIRL.

Most of them were desirous of little Doris, only girl of the trio and the youngest one. Homes in New York, in Boston, in New Haven—everywhere—were offered her.

The women had brought her new, girlie clothing, cunning, fluffy dresses and coats heavy with fur, and when they found they could not pick her up and carry her off immediately, they cried and sobbed and some, in the near-battle for her possession, shrieked loud in hysteria.

One woman offered to pay $1,000 in bills on the spot if she could take the little girl away, and she sobbed bitterly when the offer was refused, kindly, by the distracted father.

REFERRED TO LAWYER.

A bit in the background were

NOW SHE'S 'MOTHER' FOR EIGHT

A load of work and a load of sorrow, too, have fallena the shoulders of Georgianna Roy at the little home in No. 5 Beacon place, Somerville, because mother is in the hospital, badly burned, she has to run the house. And littlejimmy is laid up, too. He fought with a frenzy that only a boy who loves can tell—s save his mother from the flames that were eating the very clothes off her body.

CHAPMAN PROSECUTORS THREATENED BY CRANK

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 13 (A.P.)—An anonymous letter, regarded as the writing of a person mentally unbalanced, containing an indirect threat against those who brought about the conviction of Gere Chapman, condemned slayer of police officer, was received at police headquarters today from Chattanooga, Tenn. The text of the letter was withheld, but those mentioned in it were notified of the threat.

BOY FIGHTS TO SAVE MOTHER FROM FIRE

It's a pretty tough plight in which to put a kid—make him a hero, yet a hero in vain—and it's a crushing weight with which to saddle poor daddy and Georgianna, "the little mother," and the rest of the kids, but Jimmy Roy bore up bravely through the welling tears today.

In the Somerville hospital, little Jimmy's mother lay dying, victim of searing flames.

The hands of nine-year-old Jimmy sting with pain from the fire that he fought with the blind fury of a kid that loves his ma, and would battle and die for her.

And in the tiny, cluttered kitchen at No. 5 Beacon place, Somerville, eyes turned from the charred places where the flames had scorched the wood, Georgianna, who is fourteen, struggled courageously with the blouse buttons and shoe laces of Agnes and Hazel and Doris, who are eight and five and three—Georgianna, the "little mother."

She had finished the breakfast task only a few moments before—flapjacks and things, prepared by her young but skilled hands, for there was no Mother Roy today. She lay in the hospital, still living, by the courage of Jimmy.

Mary, who is sixteen and a packer, and Alfred, fifteen, an office boy in an architect's office, had to rush off to work, for in a home where the pennies mean so much as they do in the Roy home, a "day out" is costly.

And the stricken father, Alfred Roy, just recovering from an operation, cannot work too hard at his occupation as toolmaker.

It was a quick and terrible blow inflicted on the household while Mrs. Roy, forty-one, was preparing supper.

A tiny flame curled from out the grate of the stove, licked at her dress and then flared to envelope her.

Little Jimmy was in the house and at the cry of agony from his mother, rushed to her assistance, tearing at the burning cloth, stripping great handfuls of flame from her figure and burning himself badly.

Darting to the homes of neighbors, but finding none in, Jimmy finally secured assistance of passers by. Then his little legs raced him all the way to Charlestown, where his father works.

OLCOTT CREDITS CURE TO PRAYERS OF FRIENDS

New York, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—Having recovered in his "Lucky House," to which he was rushed when taken ill two weeks ago at Ann Arbor, Mich., Chauncey Olcott, actor, is attributing his convalescence to the prayers of his friends.

He also ascribes a part in his recovery to healing qualities in the hands of his wife, a seventh daughter. She has just presented him a marble reproduction of her hands done by a sculptor who felt inspired by St. Therese, the pulse' "Little Flower of Jesus."

"There is no doubt at all that I have been healed through prayer," said Mr. Olcott, greeting friends in his home near the East River, where he recovered from illness five years ago when he was supposed to be dying.

"When my serious illness became known all of my friends, rich and poor, began praying. Many priests throughout the city offered up mass for me last Sunday. Letters began pouring in from all parts of the country from friends who said they were praying for me. And now their prayers are answered. I am going for a ride in the park."

Displaying a sculpture of a pair of hands rising out of a block of marble, Mr. Olcott said:

"I wouldn't take a million dollars for those hands. The Detroit Museum wants to buy them, so does my friends John McCormick, but I would not part with them."

FIRE MENACES FACTORY DISTRICT IN WOBURN

The factory district of the south end of Woburn was threatened when flames, starting on the first floor of the Iron Foundry Building, No. 20 Fowles street, destroyed the plant and contents.

Firemen who answered three alarms and were aided by crews rushed from Winchester, managed to confine the blaze to the foundry building.

It was only after a two-hour fight that the firemen were assured that the blaze would not spread to the Tolman Dow Co. factory and the E. Cummings Leather Company building, which stand about 20 feet on either side of the burned build-

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Olcott as they received good wishes from friends on Mr. Olcott's recovery from attack of intestinal influenza. The well-known actor who has made thousands laugh attributed his convalescence to prayer, to his wife and the fact that he lives in "Lucky House."

BLAZER CASE REACTION TO BE STUDIED

Denver, Col., Nov. 13 (A.P.)—The psychological reactions of newspaper readers of the Blazer murder case will become laboratory material for Professor George A. Moleen of the University of Colorado Medical School.

Professor Moleen, Denver physician and alienist, who was one of the State's experts in the trial, is planning to analyze carefully the words of persons representing every part of the country who sent letters to Judge Samuel Johnson and to counsel for both sides.

"My aim is to probe the mind reactions of these people to find out whether the new conception of a 'human husk with no soul' found a sympathetic response or disapproval," Professor Moleen said. "That was an interesting and sensational phase of the case, even though a secondary feature of the trial."

Women were in the majority among those who sent communications to the trial authorities—approximately 65 per cent., Dr. Moleen said.

World Famous

EDWARD DRUMMON LIBBY

GLASS KING, EX-CHELSEA BOY, DEAD

Edward Drummon Libby, outstanding figure in the glass industry of the world, and one of Chelsea's most distinguished sons, is dead in Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Libby, whose products are known throughout civilization, succumbed to pneumonia and intestinal influenza. He was 71 years old.

He first engaged in business with his father in Cambridge at twenty years. The cheap natural gas and bituminous coal caused Mr. Libby to move his vast establishment from Boston in 1888 and locate in Toledo, Ohio.

When the elder Libby died, the son became complete owner of the New England Glass Company.

The fuel situation in New England, even as far back as 1888, was acute enough to cause the young man to look about the country for a place where he had unlimited cheap fuel.

At that time, bottles were blown by the old, primitive process of the glass blower. In 1894 he organized the Toledo Glass Company that he might have an adequate organization to back him in his new venture of making bottles automatically. Later he formed the Owens Bottle Machine Company. The success of this venture is shown by the fact that today 80 per cent. of the bottles made in the United States are made by machines built by this company.

He was always an enthusiastic patron of the arts and only recently gave $1,000,000 to the Toledo Museum of Art, although he spent but little of his time in Toledo.

Mr. Libby was decorated by the King of Belgium several years ago for his achievement in the glass industry of the world.

HUNTERS BRING BACK RUM-STUFFED DEER

A total of 855 deer has been killed in Vermont since the opening of the season—but that isn't half of another story connected with the favorite sport.

Federal prohibition agents in the far North country swear that deer is not all that is being killed or hunted. In fact, the agents say that brave huntsmen are returning with considerable liquor. Neither is that the main bone of contention.

The agents say the liquor is hidden in deer carcasses and that it is practically impossible to locate the stuff.

COP WHO WENT HOME TO SEE NEW BABY LOSES JOB

Patrolman Anthony Sassano, attached to the Fields Corner station, was dismissed from the police force today following a guilty finding by a police trial board on a charge of neglect of duty.

A week ago, Sassano, who lives at No. 182 F street, South Boston, failed to turn out twenty minutes late and was taken to task by Captain Matthew J. Tully.

The policeman told his captain that his wife had just become a mother, and he had been called home through her illness; that he was up all night and that when he dropped in at early mass at St. Ann's Church he dozed off for 20 minutes.

KIP'S BRIDE FOUND 'NICE AND REFINED' SUITOR IN HARVARD MAN

wrote: "I often wonder writing the name Rhinelander if I ever will be Mrs. L. K. Rhinelander. How proud I would be."

In another letter, from Paul Smith's, N. Y., undated, she told of meeting a "Harvard man" and telling him she was of Scottish extraction. "He is a Harvard man, but seems refined," she wrote, while the courtroom roared in laughter.

In January, 1922, she wrote saying that she had been very ill. She also said her folks had told her that he only wanted her "for a pastime."

In one of here letters read today Mrs. Rhinelander wrote to Kip:

"Kitty (a friend) tried to coax me away from you by saying you were more equal to society girls who were used to millions. I hope to be used to millions myself some day."

A prolonged battle of record love letters seems likely in the suit.

Only 31 out of 476 missives written to the young aristocrat by the negress he married, have been introduced during Rhinelander's two days on the stand. Mrs. Rhinelander's attorneys say they have a trunk full of his letters with which to return fire.

Her letters are expected by her husband's attorneys to prove that she was the aggressor in their courtship. Her attorneys insist they can prove he was the aggressor and that he knew all along that she had negro blood.

RECESSES TO AID COURT.

There are frequent references in the 31 letters already introduced to the time the pair spent in a New York hotel as "Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Tye, N. Y." One letter written to him while he was in a ranch school in Arizona, said: "I want to be Mrs. R. and not Mrs. Smith."

Another told him she would not part with a ring given her by another suitor unless he replaced it. "I do not want to get crazy for you if there's nothing in it," said another.

"Love Dove" Letters Carried Hugs and Kisses for Kip

New York, Nov. 14—Twenty-five fervent love letters from Alice Jones to Leonard Kip Rhinelander featured the trial of the latter's annulment suit in White Plains Court today.

In some of the letters Alice expressed her love for Kip in ardent poems she wrote herself.

She expressed joy in the kisses he sent to her, and returned him "sweet kisses" of her own—kisses she saved for him alone.

The first letter read was dated December 9, 1921, before Rhinelander, according to his attorneys, had ever had an affair with a woman. It read:

My Own Dearest Lenard:

Just think of me this evening being near alone. Mother and father and sister Emily and dear husband as gone to Westchester to see Buddies.

And I am hear alone, thinking of you dear heart. I said to my self, when they were going out of front door I only wished Lenard was coming down this evening. How I would carress you dear. Because you no you love for me to carress you dear.

Well sweet heart, I shall come to a close and will start and retire for the night, nothing to stay up for Lenard, so good night Lenard, dear sweet-heart. Sweet Kisses, Honey bunch. Love, Alice.

LETTERS MADE HER HAPPY.

A letter dated March 25, 1922, and addressed to Rhinelander in Washington read:

My dearest Lenard:

Received one of your sweet letters, one Saturday morning, and got a letter and postal souvenir what you sent me dear in the afternoon, its so good to get to letters a day from you dear.

No Lenard dear I am never disappointed with you only as long as I hear from you wonce a day. But yet I love to hear more.

I hope Lenard dear that my letters cheer you up, as for your dear, that makes me very happy.

There was a nice young chap came hear the other day, of Mr. Hubbard's and he wanted me to make a date with him. I said no I had one what I really cared a lot for and did not want to worst my time on no one else. Because I loved my boy, because as you say darling true love never fails.

You made me feel so happy today stating that you love me so. The same hear love dove. Nothing will break me up if you stay with me. Well dearest shall close lots of kisses and a big hug to my love one. Yours as ever, Alice.

LOVE ONLY FOR HER KIP.

On May 30, 1922, she wrote him that she had seen a motion picture in which Norma Talmadge appeared. This said:

The picture was nothing but real love this evening. Norma Talmadge said youyul love make happy marriage. I was wondering if its true. There were lots of things in the picture what reminded me of you Leonard. And this fellow propose to hear and was she happy because she loved him.

She said its a dark world if you can't have the one with you all the time what you love and I say the same thing Len.

Leonard how could you spoke to me about other girls on board. And to think what I have gone through for you and what I would get.

I do hope you are going to reward me for it in making you happy. Love its a terrible thing Leonard and you no, I have always tried to make you happy and I hope you will always love me for it, for what I have told. I pray and hope every night. I wished Len you was my husband, what things I would tell you and make you happy.

PREPARES "HOPE CHEST."

On June 1, 1922, she wrote him: "I am getting my oak chest ready for you now, as long as you want me to be your wife."

On July 5, 1922, she wrote:

I have your picture right on my bureau.

Every time I am in my room I can't help to talk to you. I can't help to tell you I am going to make you the happiest man you have ever been when you tell me the day. I have my own little ways. I have much nicer ways than what I have shown you, dear. Lots of nights I cry for you. I often wonder if you can hear me speaking to you, dearest.

Your days later she was hoping he would never forget:

Kisses, dear, from you
Can cheer me when I'm blue;
Your gentle lips have always thrilled me through;
I need caressing too;
There's happiness I can't express
In each kiss from you.

This was only one of the love poems she wrote to him. It developed that Kip also sent her fervent verses he composed himself.

Kip's "Pastime?"

Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander, who is fighting husband's annulment suit with a "truckload" of his own love letters. He claims she deceived him when they married.

"VENUS KLEPTOMANIAC" GOT SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Mrs. Virginia Calnan in Brighton court today was sentenced to one year at Sherborn when found guilty on a charge of larceny. Judge Connelly suspended the sentence, when the defendant promised to go right and keep away from stores in Boston. While Mrs. Calnan was arrested $1,500 worth of alleged stolen wearing apparel and toilet goods were found in her apartment. Police say she has a record of thefts dating back to 1899, and that she is known as the "Venus Kleptomaniac."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Very Smart Are the Costumes Worn by Hub Buds of Present Social Season

DEBUTANTE FROCKS IN bewildering variety, as worn by buds at tea and dance, dinner and luncheon, enrich the passing social picture. For the tea given by Mrs. John Endicott Peabody at her Longwood home for Miss Dorothy Lawrence (granddaughter on the distaff side) the bud's chosen frock was silver lace and azure crepe—with emphasis on tunic skirt and narrowly tapered sash ends for youthful effect.

MRS. JAMES LAWRENCE, her socially distinguished mother, wore a costume combining in effective simplicity golden brown crepe and matching laces. At the tea table dispensing cheery hospitality, was a rainbow-hued group of buds, directed by Miss Helen Swann.

AT THE SOMERSET CLUB dinner given for Miss Lawrence by the B. Nason Hamlins, the bud's happy choice was an affair of soft rose and silver. The Hamlin dinner was a merry prelude to Mrs. Albert R. Whittier's house dance staged primarily for two popular girls, Miss Katherine Hamlin and Miss Ruth Bayliss, and included 200 or more of the young folks. Mrs. Whittier's hospitalities are always of Yuletide flavor, and happily anticipated each Winter.

BOTH BUDS WERE attractive as could be—Miss Bayliss in a gleaming sequined robe of deep royal blue set at intervals with single rhinestones, and Miss Hamlin wearing a rare antique brocade of pale green and silver molded into a portrait frock such as Romney loved to paint.

Barbaric Times

one of the most fiendish punishments was to burn out the eyes of unfortunate victims with red hot tongs. This terrible fate has its victims today. Voluntary, careless victims who, week in and week out, year after year refuse to have their eyes tested though they know their vision is weakening.

Take heed today. Let us advise you intelligently. It is well to remember that incorrect glasses are oftentimes more ruinous than total neglect.

BOSTON, MASS.

MISS HAMLIN'S house guest, Miss Virginia Morton of Richmond's bud coterie up from her Southern home for a week or more of Boston gaiety, went to the Whittier dance in a gold lace frock. Later in the Winter there'll be a return of hospitalities, when Miss Hamlin goes South to be a guest in Richmond.

AMID A PROFUSION of fragrant pink roses placed everywhere about the spacious lofty rooms of the Whittier residence, guests dined and danced. At the dinner before the dance, seven ushers and six girls (with Mrs. Whittier completing the circle) were guests.

THE JUST MENTIONED trio—Miss Bayliss, Miss Hamlin and Miss Morton—and the Misses Caroline Lawrence, Elizabeth Lyman and Jean Sears made up the feminine contingent. The ushers were George U. and Walter Bayliss, Arthur Crittenton Smith, William Gray, Holland Beal, Willis Beal and Ernest Iselin, Jr.

MRS. WHITTIER'S dance ensemble was midnight blue, brocaded in silver. She plans other festivities, later in the season, for the same young set, but just what they'll be, she's keeping a profound secret.

CERTAINLY THE fashionable set fared richly, what with a plethora of young set affairs topped off by a large and important wedding. Mrs. John Paterson Duncan, erstwhile Betty Thorndike and one of the handsomest girls of Boston's world of fashion, was radiant in her bridal trappings.

SUPPLE VELVET of oyster white for gown and stately court train, rich gossamer laces of the rose point and duchesse patterns, tulle and orange blossoms greatly became the dark-eyed, vivacious daughter of the Alden Augustus Thorndikes.

A LARGE COMPANY filled the Old South Church for the ceremonial just at dusk. Tropical ferns and quantities of greenery, with scores of large white chrysanthemums, draped the balconies, marked the pews and banked the altar, to make a profuse decoration.

VERY CHIC WERE the bride's eight attendants—her two matrons of honor in navy blue velvet and six bridesmaids in peach-hued frocks exactly similar and topped with wide velvet hats—fashioned a la Captain Kidd—of deep violet.

MRS. DONALD SAGE MACKAY (Helen Thorndike) and Mrs. Gilbert W. Keech (Ilsen Hackett) were matrons, with Miss Mabel Leigh Holden, Miss Helen Bayley, Miss Theresa and Miss Lee Higginson, Mrs. Walter Scott Blanchard and Miss Matilda Ellsworth as bridesmaids.

MRS. ALDEN THORNDIKE wore a crepe of purplish-blue, the hydrangea tint, with feather laden chapeau, and carried orchids.

Another Trial Wanted Nervous, in Italy The King Shoots Atterbury's Optimism

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1925, by Star Company

MRS. LANDSDOWNE, widow of Commander Landsdowne, killed on the Shenandoah by stupid incompetence, tells a story that will interest the President.

This woman, plunged in grief, knowing that her husband had been killed because his superiors disregarded his objection to their plans, was subjected to pressure of a most disgraceful kind.

Men representing the navy sought to make her testify to a falsehood, to save her husband's superiors from the condemnation they deserved.

ARMY AND NAVY personages, inclined to put officers on trial, will find material in the officers that tried to bully an unfortunate woman and extort false testimony from her. A trial of those men would please the people of the United States considerably more than the trial of Colonel Mitchell, who told the truth and served the public.

YOU READ of "great nervous tension" in Italy, caused partly by strict newspaper censorship. It is not easy to govern a country, as Mussolini must govern, by sheer will power. At every hour of the day he is in danger of his life, and knows it, but that is among the least of his worries.

Whatever history may say of him, it must admit that when he seized power, Italy had her choice between Mussolini and anarchy.

For the sake of the Italian people it is to be hoped that the United States will not exercise hard financial pressure on the Italian people. To do so might upset European conditions, with disastrous effects upon the whole world, including the "Good Old U. S. A."

ENGLAND, in spite of her unemployed, diminished trade, coal troubles, etc., goes along cheerfully. Good King George has gone to shoot with the Earl of Iveagh.

As they proceed through the estate, shooting as they go, a traveling kitchen accompanies them. Servants carry their guns, load them, hand them up when the time comes to shoot.

Sometimes "six guns" in one day's shooting bring down as many as 1,000 pheasants and 500 partridges.

It is a most noble, glorious and inspiring sport, every bit as exciting as it would be to enter the Earl of Iveagh's chicken yard, shooting right and left.

IN BRITAIN it is called "sport." There is one advantage; it enables the traveling American to buy, all-cooked, for four shillings or less, a pheasant that has cost the Earl of Iveagh twenty shillings, merely for the pleasure of killing it.

IN HIS TALK to 178 business men at the Duquesne Club in Pittsburgh, W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, talked convincingly, the sort of optimism that the country needs.

Less suspicion, more open confidence in the country, says Mr. Atterbury, are plain everywhere, and that means better times for every one, including railroads.

THE COUNTRY needs optimism based on cleaner understanding of conditions. There is absolutely nothing the matter with the United States in any direction, except doubt, pessimism.

In one of Racine's tragedies, a devoted wife tells her husband, "don't seek to lose yourself, and you are saved." That's what should be said to every pessimist in the United States.

THE JURY in the Blazer case is unable to agree after fifteen hours' deliberation, and Dr. Blazer, who killed his crippled, idiotic daughter, after taking care of her for thirty-four years, was set free.

The judge told the jury it must convict of murder in the first degree or acquit the man. They did neither. To convict him of murder in the first degree would have been difficult for any jury.

There is, however, danger in the verdict. Other murders may result from what is practically an official decision that men under certain circumstances may use their own judgment about murder.

OF TWENTY-EIGHT students, in the University of Illinois, asked to name the Vice-President, fourteen were unable to do it.

If he lives, Vice-President Dawes will change that, and make people know the Vice-President.

ONE OF OUR troubles is that the country and its government are too big and too complicated to be understood by all of the 115,000,000 people so widely separated.

What does the word "Seattle" mean to the average man living in Hoboken? What does the fisherman examining his lobster pots in Northern Maine know about Coronado Beach? How many citizens in any of the half dozen biggest States could name the Lieutenant-Governor of their State? Not one in three.

GEORGE PULLMAN tried to create a city. It was called "Pullman," but as a separate city it didn't work.

Mr. Wood, once president of the American Woolen Company, decided that he would build a city, spent $21,000,000 on his model town, Shawsheen, in Massachusetts. A new president of the American Woolen Company, Andrew G. Pierce, Jr., moves the company away.

A TOWN IS like a language or a human being. It must start naturally and grow of its own power. You can't invent it or create it.

Alexander the Great with his power could establish cities, but they, too, faded away.

MITCHELL IN NEW VICTORY AT TRIAL

Objection to Lansdowne Testimony Overruled; General Drum Under Fire

Washington, Nov. 13 (A.P.)—The prosecution in the Mitchell court-martial failed today in an effort to throw out of court the testimony given yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne.

Mrs. Lansdowne's testimony included the statement that Captain Paul Foley, Judge Advocate of the Navy's Shenandoah Court of Inquiry, sent her a memorandum in advance of her appearance before the board "falsely" describing her attitude and the court today, in secret session ruled that it should be made a part of the record.

After the disposal of this question, J. Edward Cassidy, colonel in Chemical Warfare Service Reserve, was called. Representative Frank R. Reid, defense counsel, read extracts from testimony given a Congressional Committee by Brigadier-General Hugh A. Drum of the Army General Staff, in which he said the General informed the committee that 3,439,160 pounds of mustard gas would be required to materially affect a sixty square mile area, or 9,573,850 pounds to cause evacuation of a similar area.

"Is that statement correct?"

"It is absolutely inaccurate."

Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, quoted from a chemical warfare textbook to show the basis of General Drum's estimate. With the approval of Major-General Amos Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service, the book is now being used at the Leavenworth (Kan.) army school. It states that 515 pounds of mustard gas would be required to compel evacuation of an area 100 yards square.

Colonel Cassidy declared such an assumption was "absurd."

In the afternoon session the court refused to receive at this time the testimony of Captain Foley.

SUBMARINE TOO DEEP FOR DIVER TO REACH

London, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—A radio from the searching ships indicates that the missing submarine M 1 has been located 12 miles off Start Point, Devonshire, at a depth which precludes diving operations and renders it practically impossible to raise her.

The rescue ships report that the M1 had not suffered from any collision, and for this reason it is thought its men on board may be still alive. If they are, experts say, they face a lingering death.

A set of the Navy's latest apparatus for communicating with the surface in case of accident went down with the M1, and upon this slender only records was declared by experts to have been brought to a point of complement of approximate state of perfection, but been one of eight men and officers may be saved the most jealously guarded secrets of the signalling apparatus, which of the Royal Navy.

ILL-FATED MONITOR OF BRITAIN'S SUBS

This giant of the undersea represents the last word in naval engineering. She carried 68 men and at present is on bottom off the Devon coast, in 240 feet of water, among hulls of many craft sunk by German U-boats. There is no hope of saving her. International Newsreel Photo.

FORGED NOTE HALTS CAREER OF 'GENIUS'

The meteoric career of Edward Radding, Providence real estate speculator, builder, hotel operator and general promoter, is halted, Boston police have been asked to seek Radding here, while police in a dozen other cities are conducting a search for him.

Radding is wanted on two charges, one with having forged a name to a note for $12,500, which is held by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company of Providence, and the other with fraud in obtaining $15,000 from the National Bank of Commerce in Providence.

Radding, a former Springfield contractor, in three years time became one of the leading figures in the business life of Rhode Island. Real estate operations involving millions were carried on by him.

His activities extended to a dozen big corporations and the word that a warrant for his arrest had been issued fell as a bomb shell in banking and business circles.

Radding specifically is charged with forging the name of James Goldman, president and treasurer of the New England House and Window Cleaning Company of Providence to a note for $12,500. The forgery became known when the note fell due on November 10 and there were no funds with which to pay it.

Immediately upon the issuance of the warrant, inspectors went to Radding's home in Providence. They found only Mrs. Radding and a child of the couple. Search of the city failed to reveal any trace of him.

Radding's operations in Rhode Island during the past three years read like a chapter from Horatio Alger.

Radding doubled in hotel property like beauty. He is president and treasurer of the Narragansett Hotel Corporation and holds the same offices in the Gaspee Real Estate Company.

Sues Paderewski

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—An income tax lien involving $4,600 was filed in United States District Court against Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist, composer and former Premier of Poland. The government alleges Paderewski owes the amount on his 1924 income.

THUG'S VICTIM NEAR DEATH IN LYNN

A Lynn restaurant manager is dying, a Boston man is suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by a policeman, and four other Boston men are listed on police blotters as victims of holding men, as the result of Greater Boston's latest crime orgy.

Warren Stiles, night manager of Irma's Lunch, in Lynn, is hovering between life and death at Lynn Hospital from wounds inflicted by a thug who confronted him on a street car, shot him down and escaped with a bag containing $200.

John J. Rahilly, 20 years old, of Maple street, was shot by Patrolman Stephen Higgins of Milk street station during a riot which followed Higgins' attempt to arrest Philip J. Masone of Faulkner street, in Dorchester.

With a complete description of the man who robbed and shot Stiles, Lynn police are conducting a search and studying pictures in police rogues' galleries in an effort to establish his identity.

Patrolman John J. Donahue of the Lynn force, who was riding on the car on which Stiles was shot, Bert Ellsworth, another passenger, and Thomas Leahy, motorman, believe they can recognize the thug if they see him again.

Donahue left the trolley car three stops before the shooting. The robber had followed Stiles aboard and taken a stand at the rear end of the car.

At the stop before that at which Stiles, sitting with the bag of cash at his side, was to leave the car, a woman signaled for Leahy to stop the car. As she was alighting in Liberty square, the thug approached Stiles from behind and grasped the bag.

ESCAPES WITH LOOT.

Stiles clutched at it and the robber shot him and fled from the car behind the woman passenger, brushing her aside as he leaped to the street.

Stiles' life was despaired of when surgeons at Lynn Hospital found his lower abdomen seriously torn by the bullet.

The thug is described as about 25 years old, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall, weighing about 125 pounds. He wore a sand-colored lightweight coat, dark blue suit and powder blue cap.

Roland and Llewellyn, sturdy boys, but they had offers too, although not nearly so many as tiny Doris.

A man from Stoneham wanted Llewelyn, but a man from Middleboro, when the hysteria had subsided, offered to take all three children into his home, that they might not be separated.

Money was showered on the children, nickels, dimes, quarters and bills and some checks for them came through the mail, with more offers of adoption.

Victor Morris, manager of Lowe's Theatre, has made one offer to adopt little Doris, but one and all of the kindly strangers were referred to Hardy's lawyer in Pittsburg, for Hardy does not feel capable of deciding the heart-breaking question.

U. S. HOLDS JAP SHIP FOR CRASH

The United States government, through Assistant United States Attorney George R. Farnum, today filed a suit against the Japanese steamer Atlantic Maru as a result of her ramming the government lightship Pollock Rip off Nantucket last Sunday afternoon.

The action charges that while the steamer was proceeding toward Boston through a heavy fog she collided with the lightship because of negligence on the part of the Japanese crew. The government contends that at the time of the accident the lightship was giving her customary fog warnings and that the Atlantic Maru gave no heed to them.

As a result of the crash the government boat was seriously damaged and put out of commission. The Atlantic Maru is now being held at the Army Base here.

The collision in Nantucket Sound marks the second casualty among the United States lightships within a week and it understood that similar action will be taken in New York against the Danish steamer M. C. Holm, which rammed and sunk the Hedge Fence lightship off Martha's Vineyard last Wednesday night.

Munson, Leg Paralyzed and Brain Inflamed, Believed Overwork Victim

Ernest H. Munson, Boston Univ[illegible] student, who was stricken with a mysterious malady last week, died today at the Bay State Hospital.

Munson was taken to the hospital with one leg paralyzed and his brain inflamed. Overwork is supposed to have been the cause of his breakdown. During the Summer he delivered 800 quarts of milk daily to keep in condition and to help pay his way through college. Physicians were unable to diagnose his case.

Funeral services will be held at [illegible] tomorrow morning at the Sigma Chi fraternity house, of which Munson was a member, and the afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home in Falmouth. Interment will be in Falmouth.

A PLAYWRIGHT OF SOCIAL DISTINCTION

Mrs. Philip Saltonstall of No. 44 Beacon street, a member of one of Boston's oldest families, will see her play, "As a Man Thinketh," at the Copley Theatre next Tuesday.

Mrs. Frances A. F. Saltonstall, well known in Boston society circles and wife of Philip Saltonstall, is author of "As He Thinketh," a new play in three acts, which will be revealed or the first time on any stage at the Copley Theatre next Tuesday afternoon. The play will be repeated at the Thursday matinee.

Mrs. Saltonstall, who for years has been one of the most ardent patrons of the theatre, has chosen psychology for the subject of her play, and according to Mr. Clive, has woven around this interesting theme a play of tense and dramatic appeal.

KIN BATTLE TO SEE CARBARN PRISONERS

Officers were required to use force to restrain relatives of the five defendants in the Waltham car-barn murder trial from crowding around the prisoners' cage during recess of court in Cambridge today.

Wives of two of the defendants were barred from the courtroom by Judge Fosdick because they are to testify later as witnesses.

One of them, the wife of Joseph J. Bennett, who is charged with being an accessory to the murder of James H. Furneau, the aged caretaker watchman, following the holdup on the night of October 8, left the room sobbing. Several other women relatives of the defendants wept as District Attorney Reading outlined the government's case.

TURNS STATE'S EVIDENCE.

Peter V. King, one of the prisoners will take the witness stand as a government witness, as will his wife, and the murder charge against King will be not pressed, Reading announced.

The first witness called was Dr. George L. West, medical examiner for the Second Middlesex District, who performed an autopsy on the body of Furneau at the Waltham Hospital.

Dr. West testified that of seven wounds on the body of Furneau, any one of six of them was sufficient to cause death. One was a bullet wound in the knee which caused a hemorrhage and the other six were wounds on the head made by a blunt instrument.

MAY GO TO HOSPITAL.

Permission was granted the district attorney to allow Dr. Warren [illegible], state psychiatrist, who testified in the "Lone Wolf" case, to be in the courtroom to observe [illegible] of the defendants during the trial. He will later testify.

The jury may be asked to go to the Waltham Hospital to listen to the testimony of one of the government witnesses, Ellery, who was shot up by the masked bandits at the carbarn.

"No matter what part any of these men took in the hold-up, they are equally guilty of the crime of murder," said Reading. "Every man who participates in a crime punishable by life imprisonment, such as armed robbery, where death results, is equally guilty with all the rest of first degree murder.

"Because of the extreme brutality and ferocity of the attack on James H. Furneau, the watchman at the Waltham carbarn, this is just as much a case of first degree murder as any long-premeditated case."

Mrs. King, he said, will tell the story of visits to the apartment occupied by the Kings to several of the defendants a short time before the holdup.

15 NEW MAIL CARRIERS ALLOTTED TO BOSTON

Fifteen additional letter carriers have been allowed Boston by Postmaster-General New, it was announced today. A large increase in the postal business is given for the reason. New York has been allotted twenty-five additional and the force at Hartford is to be increased by five.

MacMillan Chooses
"A Well-Balanced Diet Built Around Meats"

Nothing developed on the trip to cause me to revise my idea about foods; which is that a well-balanced diet built around meats yields the best health results.

On the way north we had fresh domestic meat from the supply taken aboard when we sailed. After we reached the North we relied upon the wild life of the region, using seal, walrus, caribou, muskox, Arctic hare, and many kinds of wild ducks.

Every day we had fresh meat with plenty of fat at at least one meal and usually oftener when supplies were plentiful, and every one came through the four months in excellent condition; in fact, most of the members of the party gained weight.

While we often hear it claimed that eating too much meat is unfavorable to health, it is a fact that such ailments as gout, hardening of the arteries, and other disorders attributed to an excess of meat eating are quite unknown to the Eskimos who eat nothing but meat.

In my own experience I have never known anyone to attempt to live in the Arctic on a vegetarian diet. On the other hand, every Arctic explorer nowadays relies upon the native fresh meats as a sure preventive of scurvy, a much dreaded nutritional disorder which was prevalent in earlier Arctic experience times before we learned a lesson in diet from the Eskimo.

Donald B. MacMillan

The above message from Donald B. MacMillan, the famous Arctic explorer, is of vital interest to every housewife. The MacMillan expedition carried Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon and other Swift branded products.

DARTMOUTH INVADES "CHI"

HAWLEY SEES HARD BATTLE

"Will Try to Win Any Kind of Football Game, Says the Coach of Big Green

By BILL GRIMES

Bill Grimes

The Dartmouth football squad and all coaches arrived in town from Hanover this morning. Coach Hawley of Dartmouth was interviewed by Bill Grimes of the American and the following interview was the result:

"We are here to win any kind of a football game," said Coach Jesse Hawley to the bunch of stupid reporters there. We haven't expected anything but a hard battle from the start of the season.

Due to the fact that Stagg Field has a seating capacity of only 34,000 there is a terrible shortage of tickets.

Bill Grimes will send a pinch pinch stunt for the Boston Evening American on Saturday and Sunday for the Sport Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

If ... re was nothing she would have changed. This first experience had gone deep, however—so deep that the form of her reaction came, when it did come, as a surprise to herself.

After her talk with her father she stored away perception of a wider reality deep within herself. Immediate anxiety for Curly, on the news of his disappearance, was succeeded first by a feeling of pity for him and the failure which he represented. "It seems," she said, "such a frightful thing that one human being can love another and not succeed in firing the other with it. It suggests that there is something wrong with the law of natural selection, or at least that the individual has not obeyed it and is off on a false trail—and that's just as sad if I fell in love and the man didn't care, I think I'd die of shame. That's what made Curly run away. Heavens, what an appalling time he must be going through! Can't we do something for him, Dad; send him something?"

SHOOK HIS HEAD

Jim shook his head.

"I think you are right about Curly," said Nancy. "I wish, for his own sake, he'd picked on any other girl but me. As it is, he's got to live it through for himself. If I began to sympathize actively, it would only do more harm than good and get him more muddled than he is now.—I suppose, incidentally, he did a very wise thing in going?" The question was put in all frankness. She didn't know that within her mind it found an answering echo.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY
THE MAN WHO WROTE "ROBINSON CRUSOE"
By Foxy Grandpa
"FOXY GRANDPA," said Bobby, laying down his book, "that is the best book I ever read."
"You agree with millions of boys and girls, Bobby," I said. "Robinson Crusoe" has given pleasure to boys and girls all over the world."
"I'd like to know something about the man who wrote it, Foxy Grandpa. He must have been a fine man," said the boy earnestly.
"I'll tell you about him, Bobby," I said.
"Once upon a time in the parish of St. Giles in Cripplegate, London, there lived a butcher. And this butcher had a little son who used to run about the shop and hide behind the great sides of beef and listen to his father talk to the customers as he cut off beefsteaks and chopped up meat for stew.
"This butcher's name was Defoe and the little boy's name was Daniel."
"Daniel Defoe!" exclaimed Bobby. "The man who wrote 'Robinson Crusoe!'"
"The very same," said I. "Now, the Defoe family thought it would be a fine thing if their son, Daniel, would be a minister. So when he was fourteen they sent him to Newington to study for the ministry.
"There the young Daniel studied very hard. He learned Latin, Greek, French, Spanish and Italian.
"But after all this study Daniel Defoe decided that he did not feel that he would make a very good minister, so what do you think he did?"
"Go to sea!" asked Bobby.
"Nothing so romantic," I laughed. "Daniel Defoe became a hosier.
"But all the while he was selling stockings he was thinking of serious things and trying to think of a way to help his fellow men.
"Then there were no newspapers, so what did Defoe do but write what he thought would help his fellows in the form of a protest against the Government, and his writings were sold in the form of pamphlets on the streets of London.
"But, unfortunately, in one of these pamphlets Daniel Defoe said some things against the state which were considered a libel.
"For this he suffered and was put in the pillory—with his head through a hole in a plank and his hands through other holes—for the people of the street to jeer at.
"But poor Defoe was put in prison. Instead of sitting there in the dungeon, however, and thinking how badly off he was, he started a weekly newspaper and wrote.
"Then in later years Daniel Defoe wrote the great story which you have just finished.
"Defoe died in 1731 and was buried in Bunhill Fields."

RETAIL TRADE IN BOSTON IS ACTIVE

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

Retail trade continues active and the volume of general business is large. Sales of wool are increasing, and there is a firmer tone in the market. A mark-up of from 2½ cents to 12½ cents a yard is reported by the mailing interest in men's and women's suitings for the Spring.

WOOLENS IN DEMAND.

The demand for woolen goods, particularly the heavier weights is good. Worsted and woolen yarns are sharing in the increased business, and prices are being advanced. Receipts of wool for the week have been moderate.

A large volume of trading in cotton cloths is reflected in current mill operations, which have reached the highest point of the year. Prices are steady. Cotton yarns, while not so active as during the past few weeks, still continue to buy in fair amounts; prices are weaker.

Manufacturers of finer coverings are active, and continue to absorb a considerable amount of both cotton and woolen yarns.

Building permits filed in thirty-nine Massachusetts cities for September, 1925, totaled $28,071,000, which was an increase over the total for September, 1924, of 42.3 per cent.

SHOE WORKERS BUSY.

Activity in the lumber market is confined chiefly to West Coast stock. Prices are weak. The demand for hardwood from the manufacturers is increasing, but hardwood flooring is slow.

Tanners are withholding purchases hoping for lower prices on hides, but the market, as yet, has not changed. Shoe production continues on a very satisfactory basis.

Spring orders are a little slow in coming in, but current orders are being received in good volume. Local retailers report very satisfactory sales. Orders for Winter footwear are heavy, and considerable overtime work is reported.

RECOVERY OF MARKET DAY'S BIG TOPIC

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor.

Go into any Boston brokerage house and you will find the big topic of discussion is not the wealth of, as was at one time the case, but the remarkable recovery effected in the stock market after the break early this week. It looks like a merry Christmas again, we are told, although some "blue days" are likely to intervene now and then for margin traders.

Gaillard F. Ravenel, lately appointed manager of the Boston offices of the International Mercantile Marine Company, who has just assumed his duties at this post, was formerly assistant to President P. A. S. Franklin, the frank speaking head of the company in New York. Who has never feared to call a spade a spade when discussing the state of the world's shipping for the benefit of stockholders.

Mr. Ravenel succeeds Sidney J. Jackson assigned to the company's Antwerp offices, after several years, during which he has made many friends in Boston. "I hope to return to Boston before long," is Mr. Jackson's message on the eve of departure. The writer met both Mr. Ravenel and Mr. Jackson for the first time this week, finding them possessed of push and personality to a high degree.

Either prohibition is causing consumption of a great deal of grape juice or else the readers of the "dry law" are making more wine, it would appear from the statement of President Stone of Atchison, said to be the railroad most largely owned by New England investors.

Says President Storey: "Movement of grapes from the Pacific coast continues at a tremendous rate. Up to October 24 we moved 29,967 cars of grapes, against 16,000 cars in the same period of last year. Our loadings of oil continue at a high rate, owing to the fact that most oil is now being shipped by water line. Largest part of crude oil in our territory is being shipped to the Gulf where it is transferred to tankers for delivery to the East coast. It seems now that, with the margin of net income up to September slightly ahead of 1924, Atchison's net for this year will about equal the $15 earned last year."

Disastrous results to maintenance of roadbed by transportation service is obvious in New Hampshire unless Congress enacts legislation to bring interstate bus operations under some form of regulation, declared Ira Dodge, assistant to president of Boston and Maine railroad, in discussing bus service of railroad.

George E. Roosevelt denies any connection plan for reorganization of St. Paul road has been agreed on by Roosevelt & Son and Kuhn, Loeb National City interests.

We read that the Boston Reserve Bank raised the discount rate from 3½ per cent to 4 per cent. because loans on stocks and bonds increase something like $1,000,000,000 the first of the year, rediscounting about 120,000,000 and so on. Then we read an advertisement from the American Trust Co. which gives New England's banking assets as $7,000,000,000. Mississippi's leading wit over $4,000,000,000.

FINANCE

BY B. C. FORBES

Not one section but most sections of this country are doing well.

The financial centre of the nation, New York is booming, reflecting prosperity or at least great optimism, elsewhere. Detroit's labor roll is the longest in that city's eventful history. Chicago's leading industries are active. Things have been picking up notably in the mining states of the far west. The northwest reports distinct improvement. Most parts of the South are progressing impressively.

The popular idea is that the Florida magnet has been drawing people and as a consequence, business from California.

This is not so. The prosperity of this young nation is so well-founded, so solid, so pronounced that a boom in one part doesn't mean depression in any other part. We have enough prosperity to go round.

Here are facts reflecting Californian conditions:

The Western Union's revenues during 1925 have increased 12 per cent. over last year, Los Angeles ranking as the third in volume for the whole country.

October clearings in Los Angeles were the highest of any month in the city's history. The increase in clearings so far this year has exceeded $450,000,000.

Los Angeles bank deposits have increased $100,000,000 during the last year and now total nearly $1,000,000,000.

Building permits this year have totalled practically last year's volume, the total for the nine months having been in excess of $115,100,000.

Agricultural conditions are good. The largest increase in the Los Angeles trade territory has been in the cotton crop, with 350,000 bales as against 240,000 last year.

The total value of products shipped out of Southern California this season will reach approximately $100,000,000.

Summer sales in all important retail lines have averaged 15 per cent. above last season.

Oil export for December were 7,159,184 barrels, California leads all the States in oil production.

The average rainfall to date throughout Southern California, the official records show, has been over three times the fall for the same period last season.

The total value of the tonnage passing through Los Angeles harbor is 20 per cent. ahead of a year ago.

Los Angeles, the largest garment manufacturing centre west of Chicago, last year manufactured $34,000,000 worth of goods and 12,000 garments and the present year is showing a substantial expansion.

France's Right to Be Called 'Most Civilized' at Stake

France faces more than one of her frequent Cabinet crises today. She faces more than the possibility of a general election. She faces, in cold fact, a test as to whether she merits the title of "most civilized of nations."

Civilization includes more than depth in philosophy and high skill in the arts. It includes, nay, more, it depends essentially upon the ability to conduct one's life amidst the surroundings into which it is cast. By all these tests the French nation in the past has gloriously earned its title of "most civilized." Yet today the legitimacy of its title is menaced both from within and without by the selfishness of politicians, by the cowardliness of leaders, by the refusal of the French national mind to accept facts.

Seven years ago this writer was crossing the Place de la Concorde, just at 11 o'clock in the morning. At that hour a great banner was unfurled from the offices of the International News Service and the Agence Radio on the Boulevards a mile away. It read: "Armistice signed. The war is over."

And right there, it has often seemed, the French national mind took the wrong track. It seemed to conceive that that moment ended all trials, as it ended the mortal trial of the war.

France began to reach for every reward, to get from under every possible burden. The emotion is one easy to understand if one understands the dreadful losses, the galling burdens France had carried. But if it was an emotion easy to understand, it was likewise one to resist.

France did not resist too well. So today Premier Painleve must carry before the Parliament the accumulated burden of these seven years.

France turned to the repair of her devastated provinces, Herculean labor. But she borrowed the money to do it.

The nation that but a few months before had been crying for soldiers of her allies to "come over lest we perish" became the most cocklofty sabre rattler in Europe. She kept her own armed forces at war strength. She organized and financed new war forces for her allies to Germany's east and south. She proposed an international general staff to make of the League of Nations a super-military league of armed victors which she would dominate.

And all this she did on the assertion of her statesmen that she would wring unimaginable sums out of a prostrate, revolution-torn enemy across the Rhine.

She had built herself under the stress of war and with war-borrowed funds a vast industrial region along the Rhine to replace that captured by the Germans about the northern coal fields. She began to organize her newly reacquired provinces which the Germans had so notably developed in industry.

She set herself to a career of imperialism in northern Africa and in the Near East.

And through it all she sought the benefits. Her people became prosperous. Her industrialists, her politicians, her peasants made money. She built herself a favorable trade balance abroad.

But all the time the Government refused to pay. It borrowed from its own people and from their friends. It never was allowed to enter into the French mind that this war was such that there were no spoils for the victor, that victor and vanquished alike must pay the costs of the evil wrought by it all.

Politicians kept in office for years by refusing to tell France that truth. Politicians are now striving to keep in office by refusing to tell France that it is time to pay the piper.

Hence the trouble that faces M. Painleve today is more than a question of the capital levy or of drastic taxation. That is the nub of it all, but there are other things. France has done a doubtful job in Morocco and a bad job in Syria. Both have cost money.

There is but one hopeful element. The smooth Aristide Briand has remedied the blunders of Poincare on the Rhine. The role he played for France at Locarno marks the definite turning of the French mind away from war.

But salvation depends not alone upon confession of sin and promise of a better life. It demands reparation, penance.

That is just as true of nations as it is of human souls. As France realizes this, as she succeeds in turning away from the spurious moral system that justifies "anything you can get away with," she will justify her title as "the most civilized of nations."

The Passing Carpet Tack

Its Days Are Numbered

Pity the poor carpet tack.

Its days are numbered.

Like the bustle, the corset and the hairpin, it may soon be numbered among the casualties of the onward march of progress.

Manufacturers who agreed to cut down the number of sizes of tacks from 200 to 186, in the interests of reducing commercial waste, barely spared the life of the good old carpet tack.

It was pointed out that the changes in interior decoration in recent years had made it nearly obsolete.

A compromise was finally agreed upon to include it in the list, but to select another name for it.

Whether a carpet tack by any other name will feel as sharp, the bare feet of the immediate future will discover.

Observing Gullivers

Voice Impressions of America

America has been profusely blessed with foreign visitors. Like the Houyhnhnms and the Yahoos, our customs have been minutely recorded and wondered at.

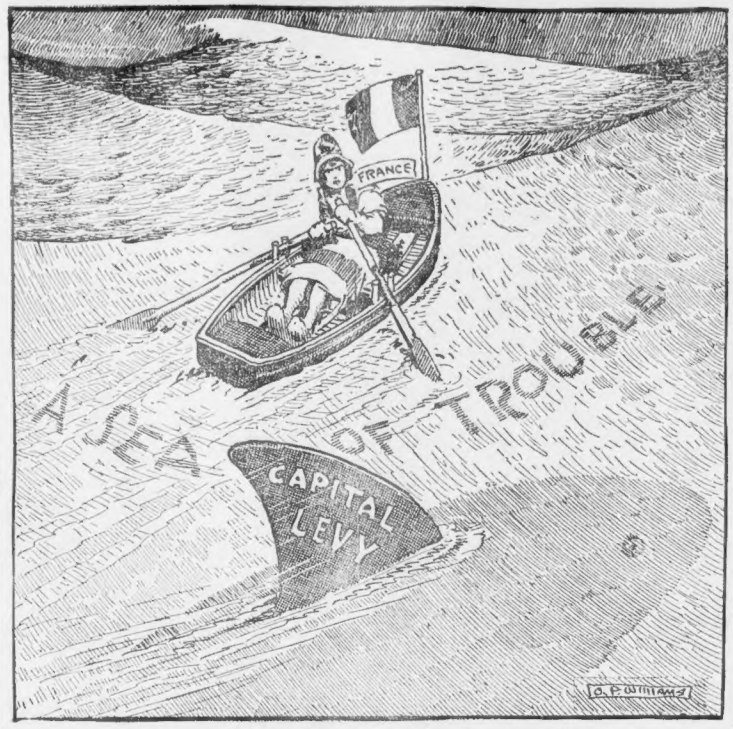
Most of the observing Gullivers have come from "the tight little isle" on the other side of the Atlantic.

The latest British visitor to go back home and give voice to his "impressions of America" is a canon of Westminster.

He says the Americans are not chasing the almighty dollar any more than are the English.

We may not be chasing, but we are getting more of them.

Doesn't Like the Looks of It



In the sea of troubles that confront the French nation that nation seems pitifully without leadership. Stout arms are at the oars. The tri-color flies gallantly. But there is no one at the tiller.

Great waves menace the French craft from every quarter. But it is the devouring capital levy that attracts French attention at this moment.

Will France be ready to sacrifice to this monster?

Or can France, with some wise head and skillful hand at the tiller, navigate out of reach?

That wise head and skillful hand are not yet in sight. Yet it is axiomatic that times of stress produce the men to meet them when a nation is really great. And no one can doubt the essential greatness of the French.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A WELL-KNOWN judge says that working girls have a perfect right to kiss during business hours. Department stores should do everything they can to please their customers.

WHEN a man buys an expensive article he likes to get a little bug along with it. It helps to take the pain out of the price tag.

OF course, some men customers are so cheap that they'd expect all of their kissing on dollar day.

THEN after they got seven or eight buss they'd return the merchandise and get their money back.

BY doing this a man could spend all afternoon kissing and not be out anything except his time.

HE could buy some other employer's girls at his own boss' expense.

THEN he could turn around and sue the girl for the wear and tear on his face.

KISSING should also be allowed in business offices. It isn't right that a girl should have to spoon during her lunch hour.

IT'S no trouble at all for an experienced stenographer to take dictation and hold hands at the same time.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Elsie Robinson

LUCILLE is all smoked up over Husband Harry. They've only been married seven months and already a Dreadful Change has come over Harry.

HE DOESN'T TELL HER EVERYTHING!

This is particularly atrocious in view of the fact that they made a Solemn Compact before they were married to Tell Each Other Every thing. All around them were married folks fibbing to each other, keeping things from each other, scheming and tricking, fooling each other continually. A despicable state of affairs.

A state of affairs that Lucille and Harry would never allow to arrive in THEIR lives—never, never, NEVER.

And already Harry has broken that vow. Time and again Lucille discovers him holding out on her. Sometimes it's unintentional. But sometimes he actually means to do it! And lately when she reminds him of their compact, he laughs or gets peeved. Says that was "puppy love nonsense"—that a man can't possibly talk over everything with his wife. And that it's downright wrong to reveal his friends' or his lodge's secrets to anyone, even the lady he's married to.

So Lucille feels sure that her heart is broken. If he's like this after seven months, what will he be after seven years? Just like all those other horrid, sneaking, fibbing, cheating married men!

No he won't, Lucille. If he's a decent man he'll stay decent, unless you drive him to drink with your nagging.

He'll love you just as much, he'll be just as faithful, BUT THERE'LL BE A THOUSAND THINGS YOU WON'T KNOW ABOUT HIS LIFE AND A THOUSAND THINGS HE WON'T KNOW ABOUT YOURS.

Which is perfectly right.

Why should a husband tell his wife everything he knows or thinks he does? Why should a wife afflict her husband with such confidences? No, I'm not advocating secret or unfaithfulness nor any other heinous domestic warfare. I'M SIMPLY ADVOCATING COMMON SENSE.

WE MUST LIVE OUR OWN LIVES, NO MATTER HOW HAPPILY WE ARE MARRIED. WE MUST DIGEST OUR OWN FOOD.

Moreover, each one of us has a vital need for privacy. You not only bore or worry the other fellow if you tell him everything—you wrong yourself.

THERE SHOULD BE A SPACE WITHIN YOUR SPIRIT, LIKE A WALLED GARDEN, WHERE YOU CAN WALK IN QUIETNESS, ALONE, AND BE RENEWED.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland.

MY Daughter, of love and of pearls, there are more imitations than of all things else in the world!

Helen Rowland

How then, shall a damsel know the Real Thing from the Synthetic, if she heed not mine admonitions?

For, verily, I have known a few loves and many almost-loves, and the heart is unto me, as a Broadway electric sign, easy to read!

Behold, love is not that flattering assurance, which causeth a man to believe that he hath found the woman who can make him happy—but that sudden diffidence which causeth him to wonder if he can make the woman happy.

Love is not that which maketh a damsel willing to share a man's fortunes—but that which maketh her yearn to share his misfortunes and to comfort him in his defeat.

Nay, love is not that which filleth a man with vanity and maketh him determined to conquer a woman—but that which filleth him with tenderness and maketh him desirous to serve her.

For, love is not a gamble and a sporting proposition—but a SURE THING, even as a proposition in geometry, to which the wise may put Q.E.D.

But the foolish damsel delighteth in a cheap love and a string of wax beads, and perceiveth not her folly!

CAT'S WHISKERS WARN OF DANGER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE story comes from Chicago of a cat that failed to use its whiskers.

Now, we are told from the time we are children that a cat always uses the hirsute adornments of its countenance to measure holes to see if its head will go in, and more important still, if it will come out afterwards.

This particular cat found a salmon can and in its excitement forgot to use its whiskers.

When it discovered that its head was fast its wailing and gnashing of teeth ended only with the hurried arrival of the police. The cat and the can were spirited away to an anonymous destination and the short and simple annals of the cat's life came to an end.

The moral, however, remains and is equally applicable to men and cats.

Nature had presented this cat, even before its eyes were open, with something to warn it of danger.

But in its desire for what attracted it it had forgotten to heed the warning. The result was disastrous.

In the humble drama of the cat's life, ignoring its whiskers was the catastrophe and the rest was the short, swift and noisy falling action.

A man like a feline is provided with "cats' whiskers"—with warnings, gages and alarms. They warn him when he is in danger.

His conscience tells him when his moral nature is in peril.

Aches, pains, sleepliness and sickness sound the warning of physical jeopardy.

Depressions and lapses are the alarm bells of a mental breakdown.

But neither the whiskers of the cat nor the "whiskers" inside of men will do more than warn of danger. They are not like automatic sprinkler systems that put out a fire as well as give the alarm. They only notify of danger.

The fire alarm does nothing to combat the menace of the flames if the fire department refuses to respond. So "cats' whiskers" merely sound a warning and the individual has to combat the trouble.

The men who live long and useful lives as well as the felines that prosper and wax powerful are the ones that heed "cats' whiskers."

GROUND OF MODERN ALCHEMY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Noted Astronomer of Popular Interest

WHEN shall we begin to make gold by driving electrons and protons out of the nuclei of mercury atoms?

Probably never (or hardly ever), according to the opinion of Marcel Boll, professor agrege, of the University of Paris, and caustic critic of the recent proceedings of "contemporary alchemists."

Yet M. Boll admits that this scientific feat has surely been performed upon aluminium by knocking it, not into a cocked hat, but into magnesium. To produce this transformation, all that has to be done is to drive two electrons and three protons out of the aluminum nucleus, whereupon what is left becomes the nucleus of a magnesium atom, and lo! the apparent miracle is achieved.

But all this is unconvincing, if not meaningless, unless we first know something about the inside of different kinds of atoms. To begin with, every atom consists of a central nucleus with a number of electrons (units of negative electricity) revolving around it at terrific speed.

Simplest Atom

The simplest atom that of hydrogen has a nucleus and one electron. the most complex atom, that of uranium, has a nucleus and 92 electrons. The atom of gold has a nucleus and 79 electrons. In any atom most of the mass is concentrated in the nucleus, which has a prevailing positive charge of electricity, against the negative charge of its electrons.

But the nucleus is not itself simple. It consists of two constituents viz., electrons and protons. The protons are the positive elements, and they are also the chief foci of mass. Each proton in the nucleus of an atom of gold is 2,000 times smaller in diameter than an electron, and at the same time 2,000 times heavier.

Now, if the number of protons and electrons in the nucleus of an atom is changed, the physical and chemical nature of the substance built up on that atom as a unit is altered. As has been said above, when a certain number of electrons and protons are removed from the nucleus of the aluminium atom, what remains is the nucleus of a magnesium atom.

This same process would, theoretically, apply to mercury and gold.

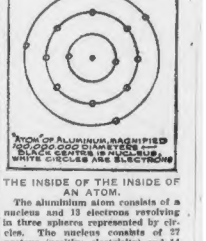
Wide Ground

It is impracticable in a short article to cover the whole ground of the problem. Let it suffice to quote M. Boll:

"It is only the light elements like aluminium that have certainly been transformed. It happens that gold is at the same time too heavy to be derived from an artificial disintegration, and a little too light to form the final term of spontaneous radioactive transformations."

Even if this is not a hopeless sentence—if the production of gold artificially is really a thing that

KNOCK OUT TWO ELECTRONS AND THREE PROTONS AND IT IS CHANGED INTO MAGNESIUM
NUCLEUS OF ALUMINIUM MAGNIFIED 100,000,000,000,000 DIAMETER
WHITE CIRCLES ARE ELECTRONS — BLACK POINTS = PROTONS



THE INSIDE OF THE INSIDE OF AN ATOM

The aluminium atom consists of a nucleus and 13 electrons revolving in three spheres represented by circles. The nucleus consists of 27 protons (positive electricity) and 14 electrons (negative electricity). An atom of gold consists of a nucleus surrounded with six spheres of revolving electrons, 79 in number, and its nucleus consists of 197 protons and 118 electrons.

ought to be hoped for. We shall see what time brings forth. Meanwhile, look carefully at the two diagrams which I have reproduced from some published by M. Boll, and read their subscripts.

Professor Rutherford, by bombarding atoms of aluminium with "alpha particles" about 20 times smaller than hydrogen atoms, but moving at the rate of 12,000 miles per second, has "knocked" aluminium nuclei into magnesium nuclei.

USE JUDICIOUS PRAISE TO YOUR EMPLOYE

You have been trained as an expert in your line.

It is your business to pick flaws and find the weak spots.

But when you find work well done are you generous and thoughtful enough to give the person credit for it.

A well-known city editor never fails to compliment his reporters on a particularly good story, with the result that each reporter does his best to write a story that will bring commendation.

This particular editor is not the "bawling out" kind either.

When a man brings in a poorly written story he is shown in a quiet manner how it might have been improved.

Thus the poor reporter keeps his self-respect and is in a mood to profit by the advice given.

This plan would hold good in any establishment.

Make It Short!

To the Friend of the People:

Make it short. This is the slogan of the times. We want short skirts, short hair bobbed, short sermons, short hours, short-sighted people for our fools, short-hair dogs for the house, bell short-tailed horses to ride. Did you beat it?

Price of Potatoes

To the Friend of the People:

If you are a real friend of the people you will keep knocking the politicians to make the prices of potatoes. What profiteers they are, unless you can summon the newspapers to our rescue. This is bold robbery on the part of a certain corporation who proposed to gouge the public by high prices.

Why cannot Federal authorities and food commissioners interfere?

How long is our patience to be abused in this way?

Sides With Col. Mitchell

To the Friend of the People:

I am with Colonel Mitchell in fighting for an independent air service, and with Ly. Harold Blazer in relieving that infamous cut of this existence, no one to herself or to any other person.

Colonel Mitchell is a reformer, and bears a distinction to the swivel chair officers. Many army officers as well as navy officers, are too set in their ideas. As for Dr. Blazer, years to come he will be named as a true social reformer.

Girl Has Left Him

To the Friend of the People:

A friend of mine has confided this experience to me. He is a young man of good habits and has been entertaining a young lady to whom he is engaged.

This has been going on for over a year. The other week he lost his job and since then this young lady has grown cold towards him. He loves her, but he does not understand why she should change towards him.

Without employment he is unable to take her around. He does not know what to do, and as for me I do not know how to advise him. A little advice on this matter would be acceptable. CHARLES SUKENER.

Animal Rescue

To the Friend of the People:

It may be interesting to the lovers of animals in Greater Boston to know that the Animal Rescue League of this city has attended to 865 dogs, cats and birds within the past three months.

This league has in addition answered over 760 inquiries on the telephone and by letters.

The annual fair of this organization will be held in the Copley Plaza ball room, November 30th-December 1st.
